NEWS FROM EASTERN MAINE.

Orono Letter.

[Regular Correspondence Whig and Courier.]

Mrs. Ella, wife of Charles M. Vinal, died at her home in Orono, Wednesday, Jan. 5, at 8.10 P. M., after a lingering illness of a painful character. She had been in a precarious condition for several weeks, so the sad event was not unexpected. Mrs. Vinal was fifty-three years old, and leaves a husband and three children to mourn her death. She also had numerous friends who will hear of her death with sorrow.

Mr. Elijah M. Vinal, one of Orono's oldest and most honorable citizens, died at his residence on Main street, Wednesday, January 6th, at 7.10 P. M. He was a man well and favorably known, especially among those interested in the lumbering business, he having been for a great many years a member of the firm of E. M. and C. M. Vinal, the well known Orono boat builders. He always enjoyed the fullest confidence of his large business and social acquaintance. He was sixty-five years of age, was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, also a member of Mechanics Lodge F. & A. M. The deceased leaves a widow and a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn his death.

Prof. and Mrs. C. H. Benjamin leave for Boston, where they will make it their home for the present, Friday night. The citizens of Orono will regret their departure and wish them prosperity and happiness, in their new home.

We acknowledge, with thanks, the receipt from J. Irvin Chase, formerly of Orono, of a draft on the National Bank of Good Fortune, of Riverside, California, for twelve months of prosperity and happiness dated at Riverside, Cal., Jan. 1, 1887.

Mrs. William Parks and son, of Boston, who have been stopping a few days in Orono on their return from New Brunswick, will leave for Boston, Saturday.

Hampden Letter.

[Regular Correspondence Whig and Courier.]

The following officers of Hampden Grange were installed Monday evening, December 3, by Past Master G. N. Holland: Geo. E. Keyes, M.; Ed. Packard, O.; Henry Cornish, Asst. O.; E. E. Frost, L.; J. L. Hampden Grange is composed of active members, and its growth has been rapid and healthy. It has been organized two years and has more than seventy members. Through the enterprise of its members a valuable library has been collected, care and judgment being exercised in the selection of books. Recently a new organ has been purchased, and all together, this Grange may be considered one of the most prosperous and well organized in the county.

Eliza, wife of Joseph Cole, Esq., died suddenly January 1st, aged fifty-six years. She was an estimable lady, a member of the M. E. Church, and will be missed by a large circle of friends. She leaves a family of six sons and three daughters, most of whom reside in Massachusetts.

The winter term of the Academy is proving highly satisfactory and successful, about seventy students being in attendance. The trustees will endeavor to get an appropriation from the State and also from the town. With a little assistance for a few years, the school would be self-sustaining. The amount of good work this school has done in the past, and is doing now, should commend it to our law-makers now assembled.

... D. Sparrow, Esq., formerly in trade here, but more recently in trade in Boston, has sold his interest there and returned to Hampden.

East Corinth Letter.

[Regular Correspondence of Whig and Courier.]

Rev. Sewall Brown preached his farewell sermon, to his people here, last Sabbath, having accepted a call from the Baptist Church in Old Town, where he intends to move this week. His society and friends met at their vestry, Tuesday evening, and gave him quite a substantial benefit.

Rev. Josiah Bean, pastor of the Free Baptist Society, closes next March five years of very successful labor with his people. During this time, his society has thoroughly repaired the church building, inside and out, added a bell tower, spire and bell, put down a new carpet, purchased two fine chandeliers (the first one being rendered useless by an accident), painted the house inside and out in excellent taste, graded the lot and made other substantial improvements, till it has become an honor to the village; and not behind any church edifice in grace and beauty in the County of Penobscot, of its size, outside of Bangor. The parsonage came in for many costly and needed repairs, as also did the horse sheds, and will require no more outlay for many years to come; but after all, that which gladdens the heart of the Rev. Gentleman the most, is the large increase of membership of the church, while he has been laboring here.

At a meeting of the trustees of East Corinth Academy, on Monday evening, I. W. Davis, Esq., was chosen President; Charles Megquier, Secretary; Geo. H. Smith, Treasurer; C. E. Edmunds, Geo. F. Hill, T. McDonald, Finance Committee; Geo. H. Smith, Agent; Chas. Megquier, H. A. Whittier, J. D. Cochran, M. D., Committee to hire teacher.

Our people are improving the excellent weather and fine sledding to get up their year's wood, and to fill their ice houses for the heated term.

Penobscot Central Agricultural Society held a meeting at the Parker House, Wednesday afternoon, and elected officers as follows: F. A. Thayer, Charleston, President; T. B. Trickey, Corinth, and Thomas Hill, Charleston, Vice Presidents; Benj. Sanborn, Charleston, Wm. McGregory, Bradford, J. M. Copp, Corinth, Trustees; James Knowles, Corinth, Treasurer; H. W. Palmer, Corinth, Sec'y.

Miss Hattie Nickerson, teaching in the District just below the village, has been obliged to close her school, for the present, to attend her sister who is very sick at her home in Swanville.

The officers of Corinthian Lodge No. 59, I. O. O. F., were installed Wednesday evening, by D. G. M. H. D. Worth, as follows: A. M. Bragg, W. G.; H. A. Whittier, V. G.; E. A. Cole, Sec'y; M. F. Dyer, T.; H. W. Palmer, R. S. N. G.; C. B. Bragdon, L. S. N. G.; F. W. Spratt, W.; A. D. Drummond, C.; C. T. Paine, R. S. S.; J. W. Stickney, L. S. S.; Chas. Megquier, Chaplain; W. R. Clark, R. S. V. G.; J. B. Chandler, L. S. V. G.; L. H. Sawyer, O. S. G.; Eben Chandler, I. S. G.

Mrs. Peoples Heald, living just below this village, died very suddenly Wednesday afternoon.

Newport Letter.

[Regular Correspondence of Whig and Courier.]

The Holiday season being over our streets and business places assume their every day appearance.

Large quantities of wood and lumber is now being hauled to this market.

In our report of the installation of officers of Meridian Splendor Lodge F. & A. M. last week, the name of Rev. C. A. Southard, who was installed as Chaplain, was inadvertently omitted.

Rev. Mr. Southard and wife received numerous fine Christmas gifts from the Methodist society and their many friends.

The Methodist Choir were also generously remembered by the society, for which they hereby return their sincere thanks.

The funeral services of Althea S., youngest daughter of Geo. J. Soper, occurred last Sabbath afternoon, Rev. C. A. Southard officiating.

Last Tuesday morning tested the strength of Newport thermometers, the mercury falling to 33° below zero in several localities in the village.

Dexter Letter.

[Regular Correspondence Whig and Courier.]

About 5.45 P. M., Wednesday, quite a shock was felt in Dexter and vicinity; it was preceded by a loud report much like the discharge of heavy artillery, and was followed immediately by quite a tremor of the earth. It shook the buildings quite perceptibly, and caused many to feel much alarmed.

The chief talk Thursday was the new post-master for Dexter. The comments were quite unfavorable outside of the immediate friends of the appointee. There is one thing, however, no one can question his Democracy, and no doubt he will do his best to satisfy the general public.

Dover Letter.

[Regular Correspondence Whig & Courier.]

The forty-fourth annual New Years' visit of the pastor of the Congregational church was held in their chapel Monday evening. Supper was served and all present had a good time.

For a long time the wife of Mr. Henry Vague, of Foxcroft, has been helpless from rheumatism, and now Mr. Vague himself, worn out by his daily labor and the care of his wife, is sick and obliged to give up work. Knowing this condition, and that he is an industrious and worthy man, Mrs. Thomas Kitchen went around among our citizens and collected some ninety dollars for his benefit which will be a great help to him.

Sometime in the fall Mr. Cyrus Hill, of Foxcroft, had a melanotic cancer removed from his back and it was hoped the progress of the disease would be stayed, but it has continued until he has given up to it and is constantly failing.

Mrs. Hannah Nickerson, who broke her hip by falling on an icy sidewalk, proposes to bring a suit against the town of Dover for $1,000 damages.

Mr. C. C. Nichols recently received an order for several boxes of butter to be shipped to Florida.

Caribou Letter.

[Regular Correspondence of the Whig and Courier.]

The cold snap is over, and the mercury no longer resides down among the forties, as it did Monday and Tuesday of this week. Such cold weather so early in the season, is said to be unprecedented in Aroostook. Assuming this to be true, one wonders where the mercury will get to later in the season if the cold increases in the same ratio.

Potatoes are bringing from 90 cents to $1.00 per barrel, and considerable quantities are being hauled in. There is still a large surplus in cellars throughout the county.

J. A. Clark our representative to the legislature, has gone to Augusta, to assume the burdens of a legislator. Mrs. Clark will also spend the winter in Augusta.

The proposed charter for a direct line of railroad into this county, is attracting considerable attention at present, and arousing much discussion. What will be done in the matter, remains to be seen, but that such a road will be built sometime, no one denies.

Judge Stearns has nearly completed his new house on High Street. It is one of the finest residences in the village. He expects to move into the same in about ten days.

A chapter of the Royal Arch Masons has just been established here under the name of "Garfield Chapter." The following is a partial list of the officers: C. W. Hendricks, M. E. H. P.; L. W. Sawin, K.; J. E. Brittain, Scribe; E. H. Pushor, C. H.; J. D. Emery, P. S.; Albion Runnels, R. A. C.; C. P. Whitney Secretary; O. P. Stevenson, 1st V.; Horace Dr Gowell, 2nd V.; M. V. B. Hall, 3rd V. The first regular meeting will be held in Masonic Hall Friday evening, Jan. 14th. A large membership is expected as there is no Chapter in the county north of Houlton.

The following are the officers of Caribou Lodge No. 170, F. & A. M., for the ensuing year: S. D. Shaw, W. M.; F. L. Oak, S. W.; J. D. Emery, J. W.; C. E. Oak, Treas.; C. B. Roberts, Secretary; J. B. Harris, S. D.; W. J. Milligan, J. D.; R. Churchill, S. S.; J. A. Miller, J. S.; S. Taylor, Chap.; H. D. Collins, Marshal; W. V. Dunbar, T. Regular meetings first Thursday of each month.

Prof. Knowlton has just closed a very successful term of Free High School, with an attendance of seventy pupils. The next term will begin Monday, January 10th. All the usual branches are taught including languages, higher mathematics, etc. The school is an excellent thing for our village.

Scrofula

Is one of the most fatal scourges which afflict mankind. It is often inherited, but may be the result of improper vaccination, mercurial poison, uncleanliness, and various other causes. Chronic Sores, Ulcers, Abscesses, Cancerous Humors, and in some cases, Emaciation and Consumption, result from a scrofulous condition of the blood. This disease can be cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

I inherited a scrofulous condition of the blood, which caused a derangement of my whole system. After taking less than four bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla I am

I am grateful for the good it has done me.—Mrs. Ann O'Brian, 158 Sullivan st., New York.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 8, 1887.

Gov. Bodwell's message is warmly commended by the press, even the Democratic organs finding little or nothing in it to criticise.

Col. Quay has received the nomination for Senator in Pennsylvania and will be elected, as the Legislature has a large Republican majority.

The question whether Secretary Lamar contemplated matrimony has been happily settled at last and Mr. and Mrs. Lamar are now receiving the congratulations of their friends.

A bill granting a pension of $2,000 per year to the widow of Gen. Logan has passed the Senate. Two ex-Confederates in the Senate had the extremely poor taste to oppose the bill, but their objection was futile.

On learning of the nomination of Hon. William H. Clifford as the Democratic candidate for Senator, a Democrat remarked that "will be a great help to him." Inasmuch as the Legislature is overwhelmingly Republican the remark was very pertinent.

The friends of Mr. E. Curtis Stevens, for years postal clerk between Bangor and Boston, and recently removed from a position as Post-office Inspector to make room for a Democrat, will be pleased to learn that he has been selected by Gov. Bodwell as his private secretary.

Gov. Bodwell has set an excellent example in reducing the length of his message. A short, business like document at once commands the attention of the reading public, but a long message is apt to be laid aside for some favorable opportunity when there shall be ample time for its perusal, and is thus forgotten entirely.

As being "only fair" to the President the Boston Herald says that Senator Vest denies the report that District Attorney Benton attacked the President in his speeches and declares that he can produce forty affidavits to substantiate this statement. Doubtless, but how about the Democrats who are ready to affirm that Benton did say just what has been attributed to him? If it is to be a question of affidavits let us have both sides.

Capt. Henry I. Wood, of Dexter, who now transfers the business of the post-office to Dr. Mudgett, has been a model postmaster. He was a gallant soldier during the war of the rebellion and was facing rebel bullets while his successor was affiliating with the Northern Copperheads who were giving encouragement to the enemies of the old flag. Capt. Wood retires from office enjoying the esteem and confidence of his fellow citizens who will wish him many years of prosperity.

Senator Frye has introduced in the Senate a bill to extend the time during which claimants under their French Spoliations act may file their claims in the Court of Claims for six months from January 1. Two years ago on January 2 the bill was passed granting claimants two years time within which claims can be filed. It has been found that there is a great deal of evidence to be obtained and that it is extremely difficult to get it. It is clear that many claimants will lose their equitable rights unless the Frye bill shall pass.

The Democratic State officials of Indiana know their friends and how to use them. At the city election in Indianapolis in 1885 the Democrats tried to count in an Alderman who was not elected. When they were balked, a fellow named Holt broke the ballot box to pieces with a hatchet. This was too valuable party service not to be rewarded, and so on last New Year's day they made Holt a Police Commissioner, and another man named Ayers, who advised Holt, a criminal Judge. It cannot be said that Indiana Democratic officials are ungrateful to their criminal associates and friends.

Having been fairly defeated in the election for Lieutenant Governor the Indiana Democrats sought to prevent the successful Republican from taking his seat on the assumption that the election was illegal. The case was taken to the Supreme Court, having a majority of Democrats, but they refused to become partners to the infamous scheme and declined to grant the injunction asked for. Failing to accomplish their purpose under the sanction of the Court, the Democrats have gone ahead and organized the Senate, in which they have a majority, and propose to so change the rules as to prevent the presiding officer from interfering with their nefarious plans should the Republican Lieutenant Governor finally secure his rights. It is by such dastardly tricks as these that the Democrats hope to secure a United States Senator. It will be remembered, however, that the same plot was attempted in Ohio and failed and we have faith to believe that this outrage will be nipped in the bud. The Democrats are furnishing the Republicans with splendid campaign material for the next election.

Our State Officials.

The renomination by acclamation and prompt re-election of our present efficient State officials was a merited recognition of faithful service.

Hon. Oramandel Smith has conducted the affairs of the State Department in a manner that commends the hearty indorsement of the people. His familiarity with the affairs of State and his valuable experience will prove an inestimable aid to the Governor and Council, who, although gentlemen well qualified for their positions, are as yet new to the routine business.

Hon. Edwin C. Burleigh, as State Treasurer, has proved a model officer. An able financier he has conducted the business of his important department with great sagacity and the excellent condition of the financial affairs of the State shows conclusively that he is the right man in the right place.

Hon. Orville D. Baker, our Attorney General, is a gentleman of rare legal ability, an eloquent pleader and zealous guardian of the majesty of the law, and the record of his department for the past two years is highly creditable.

Adjutant General Gallagher takes a very deep interest in the welfare of the military of the State and enters into the duties of his office with a snap that cannot fail to bring about good results. He has proved a most competent official and fully merits his success.

We wish the above gentlemen a prosperous and happy new year.

The Indiana Democrats are determined to steal the seat of Senator Harrison, if possible. The penetentiary is yawning for some of the fine workers who doctored the returns so as to secure a bogus Democratic majority.

Our Augusta Letter.

AUGUSTA, Jan. 7th.

Another two years have rolled round and the first Wednesday of January finds the assembled wisdom of the State at the Capital prepared to dispose of the large amount of important business before it as soon as an organization can be perfected. The old scenes, so familiar to the veteran legislator, have been re-enacted, the corridors of the Augusta House again resound with the hearty greetings of friends and acquaintances and the friendships, many of them cemented by many years of contact in legislative halls, are again renewed. The first arrivals were on Monday, but Tuesday brought the crowd. Members sought their hotels and boarding places, trunks were unpacked and a settlement made for the winter. Owing to the biennial rule the sessions have become of increased importance and as a result the "third house" has gained in size and strength, bringing an increased number of people into town at the opening week. Some have measures, private or otherwise, for which they wish to obtain a hearing, while others come to see the sights and meet their friends. Among

who have been here this week may be mentioned Hon. John L. Cutler, Hon. Lewis Barker, H. H. Fogg, Esq., Hon. J. W. Porter, Gen. Hodsdon, Dr. A. C. Hamlin, Bangor; Hon. John Hopkins, Ellsworth; Hon. Samuel Campbell, Cherryfield; Capt. Pendleton, Searsport; Hon. A. F. Crocket, Rockland; Hon. W. D. Pennell, Lewiston, President of the last Senate; Hon. W. W. Thomas, Jr., Portland; S. H. Matthews, Esq., Caribou. Campmeeting John Allen is here to-day apparently as vigorous and jovial as in his younger and palmy days. He is stopping at Hotel North and last evening he strolled into the card room where a game of whist was in progress. Watching the game intently for a few moments he remarked "I was a great card player some seventy years ago, but one day a dispute arose between myself and companions and a row resulted. I have never indulged in cards since." The venerable gentleman has many acquaintances here. Thursday forenoon he was presented to the new Governor for the first time.

THE BUSINESS END

of the House, if I am not greatly mistaken, will be near the entrance from the Governor's room. Here, almost in a bunch, sit Messrs. J. H. Manley, Lewis A. Barker, Fred A. Powers, S. J. Walton, J. W. Wakefield, and Fred N. Dow, who are well reckoned among the ablest men of the lower branch. Hon. C. E. Littlefield's career as Speaker promises to be a brilliant one. He speaks distinctly and loud enough to be heard in every portion of the hall, while he is quick to observe a member who wishes to be recognized. Mr. Littlefield and Mr. Marble are here to-day completing their committees.

A member of the House from Aroostook told me to-day, in speaking of the proposed railroad through the county to some point on the Maine Central or European and North American Roads, that it was uncertain what course would be pursued by the friends of the measure. At all events a charter would be asked for but it required a large sum of money to lay rails, and Aroostook would be unable to construct the line without aid from outside sources. He thought the New Brunswick would build if they found the road inevitable.

Mr. S. H. Rodick, of Bar Harbor, has been here this week and will be at the Capital the most of the winter. The Rodicks furnish the water supply for the famous summer resort and have done so for more than ten years. The water is taken from Eagle Lake and a new water company propose to supply the place from the same source if they can obtain permission from the Legislature. Mr. Rodick's mission here is to strenuously oppose any movement of this kind and it would not be a surprise if a warm contest ensued.

ONE OF THE QUESTIONS

which is to be paramount at the beginning of the session is that of labor and what it asks. Several bills have been formulated and the able young member from Portland, Mr. Looney, has framed a bill which would make over a column in the WHIG if printed. It is designed for the protection of women and children employed in manufacturing and mechanical industries. At the outset it provides that women and children shall not be employed over ten hours a day; that no child under 12 shall work and none between 12 and 15 unless they have attended school at least four months the previous year. Gov. Bodwell in his excellent message recommends that the employing of children under 15 years of age be prohibited by law. Mr. Looney's bill further fixes a heavy penalty on parents who give mill owners false certificates of age. Another section is aimed at the practice which some employers have of obliging help to forfeit a portion of their wages on leaving without notice. The bill creates a Commissioner of Labor, who shall have deputies and whose duty it shall be to enforce the law. Mr. Looney will present his bill on Tuesday morning.

PENOBSCOT INDIANS.

Mr. C. A. Bailey, agent of the Penobscot tribe of Indians, has made his report to the Governor and Council. The total expenditures for the year were: For agriculture, $684.16; bounty on crops, $347.75; goods for annuity, $1,382.09; schools, $594; salary of agent, $200; superintendent of farming, $150; governor of the tribe, $50; lieutenant governor, $40; priest, $100; spring dividend, $479.34; support of poor, sick, etc., $3,529.91; medicine and medical attendance, $500.64; burial expenses, $186.75; wood, and wood hauling, $1,141.96; incidental expenses, $64.70; total, $8,451.30.

The crops raised were 4,005 bushels of potatoes; 219 of beans; 129 of peas; 745 of oats; 714 of vegetables. The annual enumeration of the tribe shows the number to be 383. There appears to be a process of physical deterioration going on in the tribe, gradually accelerated as the years go by. The percentage of mortality is large—twenty-six having died during the year—fourteen adults and twelve children. The increase from births and accessories from intermarriage with those of other tribes hardly keep the number good from year to year.

The late death of ex-Gov. Sockbasin Swassian is noticed and a handsome tribute tendered him. An appropriation is asked from the State to purchase necessary hose for the fire engine.

PERSONALS.

F. H. Clergue, Esq., of Bangor has engaged rooms at the Augusta House and will be at the Capital off and on during the session.

Hon. S. C. Hatch, having closed his labors as Councillor, returned home Thursday afternoon, but will return here again on Monday to act on the commission to examine the treasurer's accounts.

NOTES.

Immediately following the inauguration on Thursday there was a pleasant reception in the Council Chamber, participated in by quite a party of ladies and prominent gentlemen. Among the callers at the Governor's rooms was Miss Clara Bodwell, a niece of the Governor.

This is a quiet day here, no small number of members having returned home during the adjournment. The majority, however, remain and many are about to-day obtaining a glance at the city.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 8, 1887.

Gov Bodwell's message is warmly commended by the press, even the Democratic organs finding little or nothing in it to criticise

Col Quay has received the nomination for Senator in Pennsylvania and will be elected as the Legislature has a large Republican majority

The question whether Secretary Lamar contemplated matrimony has been happily settled at last and Mr and Mrs Lamar are now receiving the congratulations of their friends

A bill granting a pension of $2,000 per year to the widow of Gen Logan has passed the Senate Two ex Confederates in the Senate had the extremely poor taste to oppose the bill, but their objection was futile

On learning of the nomination of Hon William H Clifford as the Democratic candidate for Senator a Democrat remarked that "it will be a great help to him" Inasmuch as the Legislature is overwhelmingly Republican the remark was very pertinent

The friends of Mr E Curtis Stevens, for years postal clerk between Bangor and [illegible] and recently removed from a position [illegible] Post office Inspector to make room for a Democrat will be pleased to learn that he has been selected by Gov Bodwell as his private secretary

Gov Bodwell has set an excellent example [illegible] the length of his message [illegible] document at once [illegible] the attention of the reading public [illegible] message is apt to be [illegible] for some favorable opportunity [illegible] will be ample time for its perusal and is thus forgotten entirely

[illegible] only fair to the President [illegible] says that Senator Vest [illegible] the report that District Attorney [illegible] the President in his [illegible] declares that he can produce [illegible] to substantiate this statement [illegible] Doubtless but how about the [illegible] who are ready to affirm that [illegible] just what has been attributed [illegible] If it is to be a question [illegible] let us have both sides

[illegible] Wood of Dexter who [illegible] the business of the post-office [illegible] Dr Mudgett, has been a model [illegible] He was a gallant soldier during the war of the rebellion and was facing rebel bullets while his successor was flirting with the Northern Copperheads who were giving encouragement to the enemies of the old flag Capt Wood retires from office enjoying the esteem and confidence of his fellow citizens who will wish him many years of prosperity

Senator Frye has introduced in the Senate a bill to extend the time during which claimants under their French Spoliations act may file their claims in the Court of Claims for six months from January 1 Two years ago on January 2 the bill was passed granting claimants two years time within which claims can be filed It has been found that there is a great deal of evidence to be obtained and that it is extremely difficult to get it It is clear that many claimants will lose their equitable rights unless the Frye bill shall pass

The Democratic State officials of Indiana know their friends and how to use them At the city election in Indianapolis in 1885 the Democrats tried to count in an Alderman who was not elected When they were balked a fellow named Holt broke the ballot box to pieces with a hatchet This was a valuable party service not to be rewarded and so on last New Year's day they made Holt a Police Commissioner [illegible] the man named Ayers who [illegible] Holt a criminal Judge It cannot be said that Indiana Democratic officials are ungrateful to their criminal associates and friend

Having been fairly defeated in the election for Lieutenant Governor the Indiana Democrats sought to prevent the successful Republican from taking his seat on the assumption that the election was illegal The case was taken to the Supreme Court having a majority of Democrats, but they refused to become partners to the infamous scheme and declined to grant the injunction [illegible] Failing to accomplish their purpose under the sanction of the Court the Democrats have gone ahead and organized the Senate in which they have a majority and propose to so change the rules as to prevent the presiding officer from interfering with their nefarious plans should the Republican Lieutenant Governor finally secure his rights It is by such dastardly tricks as these that the Democrats hope to secure a United States Senator It will be remembered however, that the same plot was attempted in Ohio and failed and we have faith to believe that this outrage will be nipped in the bud The Democrats are furnishing the Republicans with splendid campaign material for the next election

The renomination by acclamation and prompt re-election of our present efficient State officials was a merited recognition of faithful service

Hon Oramandel Smith has conducted the affairs of the State Department in a manner that commends the hearty indorsement of the people His familiarity with the affairs of State and his valuable experience will prove an inestimable aid to the Governor and Council, who, although gentlemen well qualified for their positions, are as yet new to the routine business

Hon Edwin C Burleigh, as State Treasurer, has proved a model officer An able financier he has conducted the business of his important department with great sagacity and the excellent condition of the financial affairs of the State shows conclusively that he is the right man in the right place

Hon Orville D Baker, our Attorney General, is a gentleman of rare legal ability, an eloquent pleader and zealous guardian of the majesty of the law, and the record of his department for the past two years is highly creditable.

Adjutant General Gallagher takes a very deep interest in the welfare of the military of the State and enters into the duties of his office with a snap that cannot fail to bring about good results. He has proved a most competent official and fully merits his success.

We wish the above gentlemen a prosperous and happy new year.

The Indiana Democrats are determined to steal the seat of Senator Harrison, if possible. The penetentiary is yawning for some of the fine workers who doctored the returns so as to secure a bogus Democratic majority

Our Augusta Letter.

AUGUSTA, Jan. 7th

Another two years have rolled round and the first Wednesday of January finds the assembled wisdom of the State at the Capital prepared to dispose of the large amount of important business before it as soon as an organization can be perfected The old scenes, so familiar to the veteran legislator, have been re-enacted, the corridors of the Augusta House again resound with the hearty greetings of friends and acquaintances and the friendships, many of them cemented by many years of contact in legislative halls, are again renewed The first arrivals were on Monday, but Tuesday brought the crowd Members sought their hotels and boarding places, trunks were unpacked and a settlement made for the winter Owing to the biennial rule the sessions have become of increased importance and as a result the "third house" has gained in size and strength, bringing an increased number of people into town at the opening week Some have measures, private or otherwise, for which they wish to obtain a hearing, while others come to see the sights and meet their friends Among

who have been here this week may be mentioned Hon John L Cutler, Hon Lewis Barker, H H Fogg, Esq, Hon J W Porter, Gen Hodsdon, Dr A C Hamlin, Bangor, Hon John Hopkins, Ellsworth, Hon Samuel Campbell, Cherryfield, Capt Pendleton, Searsport, Hon A F Crocket, Rockland, Hon W D Pennell, Lewiston, President of the last Senate, Hon W W Thomas, Jr, Portland, S H Matthews, Esq, Caribou Campmeeting John Allen is here to-day apparently as vigorous and jovial as in his younger and palmy days He is stopping at Hotel North and last evening he strolled into the card room where a game of whist was in progress Watching the game intently for a few moments he remarked I was a great card player some seventy years ago, but one day a dispute arose between myself and companions and a row resulted I have never indulged in cards since The venerable gentleman has many acquaintances here Thursday forenoon he was presented to the new Governor for the first time

of the House, if I am not greatly mistaken, will be near the entrance from the Governor's room Here, almost in a bunch, sit Messrs J H Manley, Lewis A Barker, Fred A Powers, S J Walton, J W Wakefield, and Fred N Dow, who are well reckoned among the ablest men of the lower branch Hon C E Littlefield's career as Speaker promises to be a brilliant one He speaks distinctly and, loud enough to be heard in every portion of the hall, while he is quick to observe a member who wishes to be recognized Mr Littlefield and Mr Marble are here to-day completing their committees

A member of the House from Aroostook told me to-day in speaking of the proposed railroad through the county to some point on the Maine Central or European and North American Roads, that it was uncertain what course would be pursued by the friends of the measure At all events a charter would be asked for, but it required a large sum of money to lay rails and Aroostook would be unable to construct the line without aid from outside sources He thought the New Brunswick would build if they found the road inevitable

Mr S H Rodick, of Bar Harbor, has been here this week and will be at the Capital the most of the winter The Rodicks furnish the water supply for the famous summer resort and have done so for more than ten years The water is taken from Eagle Lake and a new water company propose to supply the place from the same source if they can obtain permission from the Legislature Mr Rodick's mission here is to strenuously oppose any movement of this kind and it would not be a surprise if a warm contest ensued

which is to be paramount at the beginning of the session is that of labor and what it asks Several bills have been formulated and the able young member from Portland Mr Looney, has framed a bill which would make over a column in the WHIG if printed It is designed for the protection of women and children employed in manufacturing and mechanical industries At the outset it provides that women and children shall not be employed over ten hours a day, that no child under 12 shall work, and none between 12 and 15 unless they have attended school at least four months the previous year Gov Bodwell in his excellent message recommends that the employing of children under 15 years of age be prohibited by law Mr Looney's bill further fixes a heavy penalty on parents who give mill owners false certificates of age Another section is aimed at the practice which some employers have of obliging help to forfeit a portion of their wages on leaving without notice The bill creates a Commissioner of Labor, who shall have deputies and whose duty it shall be to enforce the law Mr Looney will present his bill on Tuesday morning

PENOBSCOT INDIANS

Mr C A Bailey, agent of the Penobscot tribe of Indians, has made his report to the Governor and Council The total expenditures for the year were For agriculture, $684 16, bounty on crops, $347 75, goods for annuity, $3,382 09, schools, $594, salary of agent, $200, superintendent of farming, $150, governor of the tribe $50, lieutenant governor, $40, priest, $100 spring dividend, $479 34, support of poor, sick, etc, $2,529 91, medicine and medical attendance, $500 64 burial expenses, $186 75, wood, and wood hauling, $1 141 96, incidental expenses, $64 70, total, $8,451 30

The crops raised were 4,005 bushels of potatoes, 210 of beans, 129 of peas, 745 of oats; 714 of vegetables The annual enumeration of the tribe shows the number to be 383. There appears to be a process of physical deterioration going on in the tribe, gradually accelerated as the years go by. The percentage of mortality is large—twenty-six having died during the year—fourteen adults and twelve children. The increase from births and accessories from intermarriage with those of other tribes hardly keep the number good from year to year.

The late death of ex-Gov. Sockibasin Swassian is noticed and a handsome tribute tendered him. An appropriation is asked from the State to purchase necessary hose for the fire engine.

PERSONALS.

F. H. Clergue, Esq., of Bangor has engaged rooms at the Augusta House and will be at the Capital off and on during the session.

Hon. S. C. Hatch, having closed his labors as Councillor, returned home Thursday afternoon, but will return here again on Monday to act on the commission to examine the treasurer's accounts.

NOTES

Immediately following the inauguration on Thursday there was a pleasant reception in the Council Chamber, participated in by quite a party of ladies and prominent gentlemen Among the callers at the Governor's rooms was Miss Clara Bodwell, a niece of the Governor.

This is a quiet day here, no small number of members having returned home during the adjournment The majority, however, remain and many are about to enjoy obtaining a glance at the city

Four others took to a raft but have not since been heard of. Watt Cashman and three of the crew also left the ship on a raft but before they were picked up one of the men went crazy and jumped overboard. The other twelve of the crew stuck to the ship and as the survivors saw her go down all on board must have perished.

A CLEAN SWEEP.

A New Jersey Treasurer Scoops the Whole Concern.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 7. Henry Morris, Jr., in full charge of the New York Textile Filtering Company's factory and business, at Woodbridge, N. J., disappeared a week ago. The company's safe was finally broken open and not a thing was found, the books and every trace of the concern's business having been destroyed. Protested checks and discounted notes, amounting to $70,000, have come in and it is known that Morris mortgaged his father's handsome place at Woodbridge by forging his father's name to the deed. Morris had not even told his wife of his intended departure. He is forty-five years old, tall and stout, and has sandy hair and beard. His father, Henry Morris, Sr., seventy years old, is bowed down with grief.

The Textile Filtering Co. was organized eight years ago. In connection with it patent coffee pots and condensed coffee were manufactured and coffee houses were established in New York. Henry Morris, Jr., told fabulous stories about the prospects of the company and he was believed. Two years ago he began speculating in coffee and when Arnold & Co. went under he luckily pulled through.

This increase noticed in the number of casualties arises in the South where failures are exceptionally numerous, though not important. Assignments in New York city are of little consequence.

UNRAVELLING A MYSTERY.

Deathbed Disclosure of a Homicide.

BOSTON, Jan. 7. On Dec. 5th, 1885, the dead body of Carrie Whitney was found near Wassapoag Pond, in Sharon, lying in the road. The woman belonged in Boston where she had led an irregular life. She was last seen the night previous, when she left the cars at Readville, walked up the track and was seen at 1.30 P. M., at Sharon station by the station agent. It was believed at the time that the woman had been murdered, although there was no marks of violence on her person except on her limbs, which showed evidence of having been dragged some distance on the ground.

The Police have been Busy on the case, but were unable to fix the crime upon anyone. At the time of the murder a man called Edward Greenleaf, but whose correct name was Edward Greenleaf Trefethen, lived alone in an old house near where the murder was supposed to have been committed, and was supposed by the detectives to know something about it. He was a dissolute character, but was respectably connected. Within a few weeks he died in Sharon alms house, and since his death it has been learned that shortly before his death he told a person living in the south part of the town that by falling or being pushed off a haymow in a Vienna barn, where she had been taken by four men whose names he gave, but which are surpressed for the present. They then dragged the body to the spot where it was found and afterwards distributed her articles of apparel in various places to mislead the officers. Trefethen stated that the crime was unintentional. These facts are corroborated to a large extent by evidence already in the hands of the detectives.

FORTY-NINTH CONGRESS—Second Session.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7. The Senate proceeded to business on the calendar and passed the following bills: To settle and adjust claims of any State for expenses incurred by it in the defense of the United States; to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to make final adjustment of the claims of certain foreign steamship companies arising from the illegal exaction of tonnage duties.

A bill appropriating $3,000 for the widow of Erskine Allen, formerly Master Armorer at the Springfield Armory, and the inventor of the Springfield breech loading rifle musket, in compensation for the use of the invention by the Government, was taken up and passed.

Mr. Cullom then announced that several members were not ready to debate the inter-State Commerce bill to-day, but would call it up on Monday. The Senate at 3.30 went into secret session and when the doors reopened adjourned till Monday.

House.

Mr. Dingley, of Maine, presented a memorial of various Boston marine insurance companies asking for the passage of the bill placing sailing vessels in the coastwise trade on the same basis as to pilotage as steam vessels engaged in that trade.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the private calendar.

At 3.45 the committee rose and half a dozen private bills were passed by the House which, at 4.05, took a recess until 7.30 this evening, the session to be for the consideration of Pension bills.

At the evening session the House passed forty-two pension bills, including two granting pensions of $50 a month to the widow of Gen. Durbin Ward and to Grace F. Eads, whose husband lost his life while conducting torpedo experiments.

The House at 10 o'clock adjourned until to-morrow.

A FREE BALLOT AND A FAIR COUNT

Held in no Regard by Indiana Democrats.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 7. The State Senate this morning reconsidered the resolution of yesterday to meet with the House to hear the Governor's message read and the message was read by the Clerk of the Senate. This afternoon the Senate passed a resolution, declaring that there was no vacancy in the office of Lieutenant Governor, declining to go into joint session for the purpose of canvassing and declaring the result of the November election, and adjourning until Tuesday. The day appointed for canvassing and announcing the vote for Lieutenant Governor is Monday. In the House, to-day, the Republican majority, in retaliation for the extraordinary rules adopted by the Senate, adopted a set of regulations fully as arbitrary as those of the upper body.

The effect in either House will be that the majority can summarily and quickly unseat any member of the minority, rightfully or wrongfully. The Governor's message, owing to the refusal of the Senate to participate in a joint session, was laid on the table without reading and the House adjourned til Monday. It is now understood that the Speaker of the House will declare and publish the result of the election for Lieutenant-Governor and that when the Senate assembles on Tuesday he will appear and assert his right as presiding officer of that body. His claim will be denied, and what recourse will be taken is a matter of conjecture. Quo warranto proceedings are suggested and also the possibility of two Legislatures.

A TERRIBLE AFFAIR.

A Boy of Twelve Kills a Boy of Ten Years.

JACKSON, Tenn., Jan. 7. Scott Pickler, twelve years old, last night shot and killed Chester Dodd, ten years old, son of a prominent citizen of this city. The two had quarrelled over some trivial matter and the older boy got the worst of it. He went home and procuring a shot gun shot his enemy.

THE SAN FRANCISCO EXPLOSION.

Letter from the Alleged Authors.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 7. The Examiner, this morning, published a letter from the alleged authors of the dynamite explosion in Ninth street Wednesday night. The letter is written with red ink, on coarse brick colored paper, and is signed "August Howlitz." The letter states that the persons responsible for the explosion are members of a powerful organization which originated in Chicago directly after the Haymarket riots.

It further states the dynamiters had no connection with the Carmen's Union, and that the latter is entirely ignorant of who the dynamiters were. The letter concludes as follows: "We have a programme and our for a series of dynamite explosions and shall go forward in earnest in ten roads ... in ... the Carmen ... [illegible]"

DRUNKENNESS AND INCOMPETENCY

The Cause of the Republic Disaster.

Evidence Before the Coroner's Inquest.

TIFFIN, O., Jan. 7. The inquest into the cause of the Baltimore and Ohio wreck, at Republic was begun this afternoon. The first witness examined was L. F. Fletcher, conductor of the freight train. He said: "Ed. Kiser was engineer of the freight and W. J. Callison fireman. We ran from Tiffin to Seneca siding, about 5½ miles east of here, and side tracked for the east bound express. After this train passed we had forty-five minutes in which to make Republic siding. We left this place with 140 pounds of steam. After going two miles I noticed that the train was slacking up and went forward over eighteen cars to see what was wrong.

I Found that the Steam had run Down to forty pounds. I opened the door of the furnace and looked at the fire, then looked at my watch and saw that we had but four minutes until No. 6, the east bound express, was due. I took a red and white lantern and ran ahead to flag her. I got about one hundred yards, in the curve, and signalled to stop. As the express approached I noticed that the engineer had reversed his engine. In the meantime the freight had come to a stand and the engineer had shut off steam and jumped off when the collision occurred.

The Engineer had been Drinking.

I saw him take two drinks of whiskey at Bloomdale and two at Fostoria. When I saw we had but four minutes to make the siding at Republic the engineer did not seem to realize the danger. I tried to get the passengers out of the burning cars. One man was jammed between the smoker and the ladies' car. I tried to get him out but the flames drove me away and he had to burn. I heard no cries or shrieks of others." W. J. Callison, fireman on the freight was next called. He said he was a farm hand and had been on the road but three weeks and before. He said: "We had trouble in keeping up the fire. We had 140 pounds of steam when we left Seneca siding. The train ran four or five miles when the steam was down to 60 pounds. We were then going about three miles per hour. The conductor came in and looked at the fire and said it was all right. When the conductor went ahead to flag and saw the express coming he yelled for us to jump. After the collision occurred I tried to get persons out. I saw persons in there burning, but I was so excited I could tell but little about it."

Never Knew Anything About the Business

The Brakeman's Story.

Charles Snyder, of Columbus, was front brakeman on the freight. He said: "I was in the cab of the engine and noticed that they had but one guage of water when they should have had at least three. I was going ahead to flag, but the conductor grabbed the lantern and went. I knew nothing about either the conductor or engineer drinking."

The Conductor of the Express

Thomas F. Heskett, of Wheeling, W. Va., conductor of the express on the night of the collision, testified: The express was three minutes late at Republic. I had about sixty passengers, fourteen or fifteen in the smoker.

Of that number five escaped from the smoker, two being thrown out of the top of the car uninjured and three somewhat injured. I think there were not more than ten killed. Of the number killed the names of seven are known. B. J. Hale, of Rowan, Ind., was the rear brakeman on the freight and when the collision occurred he took a lantern and went in the rear about a mile to flag any other train that might be coming.

The inquest will be resumed in the morning.

STILL ANOTHER.

A Train Demolished but the Passengers Escape.

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 7. Last evening the Delhi express, from Utica, on the New York Central and Western Railroad while running up the Delhi branch at the rate of seventy-five miles per hour, struck a broken switch at Haverley's flouring mills, about one mile from Walton, and was thrown from the track. The engine ran into a carload of steel rails and the tender was thrown thirty feet. The mill was partially demolished by the cars running into it. The Penobscot Chemical Fibre Company at Great Works have commenced to make very extensive repairs on their pulp mill. The furnaces are being enlarged and improved and two fine new digesters will be put in. The improvements will enlarge the mill considerably making its capacity twenty tons instead of fifteen. The mill is doing a first-class business running at its full capacity both summer and winter.

The January number of the Young Men's Christian Association Bulletin says: The ladies of Selma, Ala., have presented to the Association of that city a building site, valued at $5,000, upon which will be erected a handsome building. We expect great help from the ladies of our city when we undertake to get a suitable home of our own. One lady has already signified her intention of giving $250 toward the building fund. Our Association already has the sum of $1200 given by the Ladies' Auxiliary for this purpose.

ADVANCE IN COFFEE. The advance in the price of coffee is assuming proportions which surprises the local dealers. Up to yesterday there had been a rise of over fifty per cent. in all grades of coffee, with a prospect of an even greater change. When the rise commenced it was legitimate; but it is now being continued by large dealers for purposes of speculation. There is also a big rise in low grade teas, the market in which in this country is almost wholly under the control of three firms, who have already succeeded in putting up the price of these grades two cents per pound.

A PLEASANT OCCASION. The Happy Hour Society met Thursday at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Ira Farnsworth, on Hammond street, and passed one of the pleasantest evenings of the season. They were entertained by vocal and instrumental music and reading. Singing by chorus, piano duett by Miss Maggie Farrell and Miss Emma Devou; solo, by Mrs. Farnsworth; piano duett by Miss Treat and Master Alfred Bliss; Milk Maid's Marriage Song, by three of the dairy maids, Mrs. Harmon Stevens, Miss Maggie Farrell and Miss Devou; piano solo, Master Alfred Bliss; reading by Mr. McBrier; harmonica solo, by Willie Prescott and Joseph Tuttle, closing with "Ehren on the Rhine," which was very prettily sung by Mrs. Farnsworth. Refreshments were served at 9.30 and the remainder of the evening was passed by playing games and plays which was much enjoyed by the young people. Among the guests were Mrs. Freeman, of Portland, wife of the Purser of the steamer Richmond, and Mrs. Field, sister of Mrs. Bliss. Capt. Farnsworth who is pilot of the steamer Penobscot, has until recently resided in Boston, but we are pleased to hear that he has decided to make Bangor his future home.

MR. APPLEBEE'S SECOND LECTURE.

Some of the Humbugs Portrayed by Charles Dickens.

A fair sized audience listened to Mr. James K. Applebee's second lecture, at the Unitarian church, last evening, upon "Illustrations of Humbug and Humbugs from the writings of Charles Dickens." Mr. Applebee was introduced by President Charles W. Roberts, of the Unity Club, and in opening his remarks said that it would now be considered premature to venture a prediction as to the place among the English authors which Charles Dickens is to occupy. The opinions of critics differ very widely upon that point, and oftentimes professional judges in estimating upon such matters have hit very wide of the work. Whatever else Charles Dickens may be or may not be, he is intensely enthusiastic. If a thing commends itself to him to be good and true then his entire soul goes out towards it, and when he believes a thing to be bad and false, his denunciation of it is equally unmeasured.

Whatever permanent fame may be destined for him as a novelist it will not surpass his fame as a social reformer. In the latter regard he will be most gratefully remembered. Dickens did more than any other English man to expose to the Englishmen themselves the great social and political abuses of the time. The speaker dwelt at some length upon a definition of "Humbug" quoting Thackeray and giving illustrations of the various forms in which humbug appears. He said we should never be able to get at a definition of humbugs comprehensive enough to include all its forms. In mankind it was that man who contrived to take sufficient sustenance from society without making an honest and equivalent return. The books of Charles Dickens are full of humbugs and the lecturer quoted the characters from each work answering to his description.

Women have as a rule less of the humbug about them than men because they have the faculty of concealing their feelings to a less degree. Women can see through women much better than men can see through men. Women do not seem humbugs to other women but every woman is a complete mystery to every man. The lecturer first illustrated the folly of raising children from their usual condition to that of philanthropic old men and women and denounced meddlesome people in general, mentioning various incidents from Dickens, to strengthen his points. In speaking of sympathy for the sick poor, Mr. Applebee said that there were no more exquisite nurses in this world than the Roman Catholic Sisters of Mercy. Every move of theirs is soothing, every word is humble and every touch is motherly. The sentimental and domestic humbugs next received attention. Women are not a whit more desirous of preserving a youthful appearance as long as it is possible than are the men. The ambitions of life are stilled in old age but in the life of an old man or woman you may tell what the early years of that person were. In presenting these thoughts Mr. Applebee spoke most eloquently and tenderly of old age.

An old age aping the manners and grace of the youth was severely denounced. A disposition in men and women to deny old age is evidence that they have lived more for admiration than any higher motive. In illustrating this the speaker recited from Dombey and Son some appropriate selections. The patriotic humbug is the man who is always bragging about his own country to the disparagement of every other on the globe. On his first visit to this country Dickens discerned this fault, which he had previously noticed in his own country, in certain Americans. In his "American Notes" and "Martin Chuzzlewit" he notices the faults. He exaggerates in these works but not so much as in corresponding works on England. The lecturer spoke very sensibly and interestingly on this latter subject. The whole address occupied nearly two hours, but the attention of the audience was held closely.

An Exaggerated Role.

When Mr. Geo. C. Miln appeared in this city with his very weak company in "A Fool's Revenge" the WHIG critic referred to the disagreeable tendency to overdo the part manifested in Mr. Miln's "Bertuccio" whereupon the Commercial opened its columns to an alleged communication intimating that the WHIG critic did not know the difference between legitimate emotional acting and ranting. In this connection it is interesting to note the criticism in the Portland papers. The Press while giving Mr. Miln due meed of praise refers to his tendency to "exaggerate" at times while the Argus says:

The drama entitled "A Fool's Revenge," with Mr. Geo. C. Miln as Bertuccio, was played to a small audience at Portland Theatre last evening. Nature has given Mr. Miln a good face, figure and voice, for the stage, but the way he tears passion to tatters is dreadful. It is not the actor who can roar the loudest, that most impresses his audience. Were that the case lungs would be of more value to an actor than brains. In those passages where the Duke's jester is following his proper role as wearer of the cap and bells, Mr. Miln's acting left little to be desired; but in the other passages where Bertuccio allows his own true nature to disclose itself, Mr. Miln indulged at times in rant of the most pronounced type.

A Detective's Story.

The Moreton Bank was a joint stock affair in the North, with several branches Each branch was under a separate manager, with high pay, good social position, and liberty to do very much as he liked, for the central Board of Directors had great confidence in their men, and everything worked very smoothly and successfully All the managers were men who had been from boys in the bank's employ, and were very well paid, and thought much of by the surrounding gentry.

Well, business was slack, and I was sitting in my little office one October day when my head (and only) clerk showed in a visitor. This was Mr Sherris, a solicitor of good standing in the city, much in favor with commercial men. I had had two or three things before from him.

He was a man of few words, and liked men of the same sort

"Stanning, said he, "there's a thing in your line one of my country clients has consulted me about You, I know can keep your tongue between your teeth, or you'd never have had anything from me Well, keep it closer than ever, for no one knows about this affair but my client you me, and—the thief The Moreton bank is being robbed How, nobody knows That's for you to find out. Here's your note of introduction to Mr Dale, the manager. Go as soon as you can Do credit to my introduction Good morning'

Well, I was rather glad of the job, so by six that evening I was in the town of Moreton, a big but dull place, though I should say there's a good deal of cash and property about

I saw Mr Dale as soon as I could He was a keen sort of man with bright eyes, quick voice, and iron gray moustache and beard, over fifty Wife pretty, and very nice mannered, no children They made me welcome, asked me to take refreshment, and so on Mr Dale had evidently, like a sensible man, told no one of my errand, for on reading the note from Mr Sherris he merely said

"So you want to be recommended some good house property, Mr Stanning, for investment?'

I said yes, of course He was wise man Even your wife will talk to her maid, and in our line perfect secrecy, as to what our business is is the first thing to be got, if we mean to make a hit

Well, by and by Mrs Dale wished us good night She was, as I say, a very pretty woman, younger than her husband by fifteen years, I should think, and they seemed very fond of each other, but she wasn t, I should imagine, trusted by him with many weighty matters, being rather childish Yet he wanted some one to be p him, as I saw when the door closed behind her, and he turned to me with his face full of perplexity

Briefly sketched this is what he told me Robberies of bank notes had occurred for some time None could be traced Every care had been taken, every precaution adhered to He himself counted and locked up all his cash Yet, and at different hours, the notes, with irregular intervals between, disappeared He had, being well to-do, replaced them for his monthly statements to the directors, and being a proud man and most sensitive to the lightest breath tarnished his or the bank's credit, he had not mentioned to any one—not even wife nephews, or head cashier—these robberies There was such a system of personal supervision and control on his part in the Moreton branch that by a little extra work appearing nothing unusual, he was able to keep these facts from the knowledge of any one in the bank—except the thief or thieves

As for the staff there were his two nephews and five other clerks, and an old head cashier, Mr Mitley His nephews were cousins sons of his brother and sister respectively, named Adolphus Dale and Hugh Lenton. The clerks were all respectable and quiet, specially one Mason who was considered a most excellent young man

I immediately resolved in my own mind to keep a special eye on this young man in consequence of his admirable reputation As for the notes, they were taken one at a time and never larger one than a twenty five pound one—mostly smaller ones

I listened to all Mr. Dale s statements and theories, not that I had much faith in either, but sometimes one may pick up a grain of sense from amateurs—besides, as they pay the piper, they may, to a certain extent, be allowed to think they call the tune But when he d done talking, I felt this was a very difficult business However, he made me stay at his house, always as the gentleman wanting some houses, and I slept like a top till roused by instinct by somebody creeping past my door Out I crept too, and there was Mr Dale (about four A M) in a blanket, fancying he heard a noise down stairs Down he went, but found nothing Of course not

"Now look here, sir,' I whispered, "if I m to manage this, let me do it, but please don t put your oar in

"I can t sleep," he said, "I get up a all hours, and then in the morning hours I m in so heavy a sleep that I'm always late!'

I went back to bed somewhat disgusted, for it was a sharp October night, and I was tired out with my long journey But his words put an idea into my head, and I remembered something I once read about However, for the present I will put this aside

The next day he took me after breakfast into the glass panelled room where he sat, and through a little peephole I scraped in the ground glass I reconnoitred the back staff There they were, all scratching away with industrious pens, and shovelling out money to the customers, of whom, being market day, there were many

Now I don't know why, but I didn't seem inclined to notice any one in particular but Mr Lenton (Mr Dale s sister s son) and Mr Mason, the clerk, who bore so admirable a character They sat side by side in the bank, and were evidently on very friendly terms

Lenton was a handsome young fellow, with what you call a "dashing" look about him, the clerk was just the contrary, being very quiet and demure—a thoughtful young chap, too thoughtful, I fancied, if he had only the ordinary bank business on his mind

As I sat looking out, the old cashier, Mr Mitley, came in looking perplexed Seeing me he hesitated Mr Dale told him I was a friend, and he might speak before me

"Well, sir," said the old man, handing the manager a sheet of paper, "the note account is wrong. There is a twenty-five pound note less than there ought to be '

"Nonsense," said Mr Dale peremptorily, then, noticing the hurt look of the old cashier, he said carelessly, "I beg your pardon, Mitley; so there is Oh! I remember I paid one away on my private account Debit my account with it "

The old man withdrew, satisfied. Then Mr Dale, with an angry look turned to me

"Another one missing since yesterday," Stanning, even since you've been here They were all right, as Mitley says, last night "

I said nothing, but thought much, but I wasn't going to commit myself

When the bank closed (by the way, besides Mr and Mrs Dale their three female servants, a boot-boy, and the two nephews were the persons who slept in the house, while the keys were in Mr Dale's room, though that didn't prove much, for sometimes notes "went" in the daytime) I took a stroll, ostensibly to look at houses for sale, really to follow Messrs. Lenton and Mason, who went off for a walk together I followed the worst flints that ever cut their London boots, till they came some two miles out of the town to a public house, the Blue Lion It was an ordinary place enough, and the landlord a stupid sort of fellow, but he had some good beer, which is a favorite "vanity" of mine. So I lit my briar-root, drank my beer, and studied the prospect while trying to hear what I could of Lenton and Mason's conversation, who were quietly drinking a glass of ale each, in a very harmless way, in the window. Of course neither of them had caught sight of me in the bank, and as for strangers, they were always plentiful in Moreton.

Detectives are said by people who write about them to fit facts to their own theories Perhaps they do, sometimes Anyhow, I did on this occasion, when I found the object of my two gentlemen's visit to the Blue Lion was to see a well-known sporting paper, which, with so strict a view as was taken in Moreton of barking people, they couldn't have gone to a own public-house to see, or borrowed without the chance of a row; for Moreton is a place, big as it is, where everybody knows everybody else.

The two pored over this paper as if they had something "big" on the next big race, and I began to think I could guess where the notes went. Not that I endorse the humbug talked about betting whenever a young fellow comes to grief. There are many things quite as likely to be the causes of it; but in this particular instance I thought it more than probable I had got something like a clue to the puzzle.

After a time the young men retired, having had a long and subdued conversation, and I was left to digest what I had heard—not much, certainly, but something

I said nothing to Mr. Dale, stayed on in my capacity of investor who couldn't find any investments to suit him, and kept my eyes open Several days passed, and no more notes were missed. Mr. Dale got rather more tranquillized, and Mrs. Dale ventured to play her piano to him in the evening, which for some time he had been too irritable to listen to, much to her surprise, as neither she nor any one else had been told of the missing notes, and he was generally very good-tempered with her, though short-tempered with most people

But one day a discovery was made, not through me, though for my credit's sake I had spoken my suspicions of the party concerned to Mr Dale—namely, young Mason I told him I fancied he was in some way connected with sporting matters, and got for my pains an incredulous laugh, and a hasty remark about detectives' acuteness. This nettled me, so I just told him about the scene in the Blue Lion.

He was enraged, then, I could see, both with me and the two young fellows, but just as he was going to say something about it in came old Mitley, as usual, with a bundle of notes that day cashed or paid in Mr Dale ran his eye carelessly over them—paused—stared—consulted his pocket-book, and then said, with an affectation of indifference

"Where did this five pound note come from, Mitley? It's very greasy "

"Mr Mason asked me to change it, sir "

"Mr Mason! Very good you can go'

The door closed, and the manager turned to me, his face a mixture of regret and anger. "I owe you an apology, Stanning, for laughing at you about Mason I am most grieved, but this is one of the stolen notes Still, that doesn't prove his guilt, and his changing it here looks like innocence "

"Or like cleverness, sir, in playing a bold game to disarm suspicion "

"Well, I'll call him in Step into that cupboard, you can see and hear without his knowing it '

In came Mr Mason, quiet as ever, and stood waiting for Mr Dale to speak, with an unruffled air of indifference He was a cool hand

The manager came to the point at once "How did this note come into your possession, Mr Mason?" he said showing it. "I have a particular reason for asking '

The young chap flushed crimson, and Mr Dale looked sternly at him I in my cupboard thought, "Another point to you, Jim Stanning '

"It is a matter of my own sir—a private matter—nothing to do with the bank," he said after a pause

"It has everything to do with the bank, Mr Mason This note is a stolen one '

Young Mason started as if shot, then looked at the manager with the finest imitation of injured innocence I ever saw

"I know nothing of that, sir But I would rather not explain how I got it '

"Perhaps not But you had better, and when my nephew returns (he was out driving Mrs Dale in her pony carriage) I shall ask him for an explanation of how he and you, my clerks, come to be at a pot-house studying a sporting paper (Here the young chap looked—if you will excuse my little joke—quite chap-fallen as I've heard Hamlet say) 'However I ve known you and your parents so long,' the manager went on in a kinder tone "that if you'll only admit you ve been betting like a couple of young fools, I will see what can be done though I am very wrong in doing so, to hush the thing up "

The young man thereupon vowed and protested that he and Mr Lenton never betted, and that as for the note, he had it paid him by Mr Phillips, the grocer

"Then he must know something about it And why was it paid you?' said Mr Dale

Here Mason looked very red again, and stammered out that it was for a prize bull terrier pup Being urged by Mr Dale to explain further, he confessed that he and young Lenton had a joint stock of bull terriers, which they bred and showed Hence their study of the sporting paper Mr Dale seemed somewhat to believe this story (though even breeding bull terriers scandalized his non-sporting heart,) but I didn t, and thought what a muff he must be to swallow such rubbish

However, he gravely enjoined secrecy on Mason, dismissed him, and then went with me to see Mr Phillips, who was a sporting grocer of very free-and-easy manners, and not a customer of Mr Dale's establishment

Mr Dale was too official, and the grocer turned rusty So I tipped him the wink to go, and remaining alone, got him to accompany me to his favorite house of call, where we had Irish cold together, (I was supposed on this occasion to be the former owner of the note,) and he became very talkative, though expressing his dislike of that "stuck-up manager' in a man be not uncommon among gentlemen who want doubtful bills discounted

He confirmed Mason s story completely As for the note, he believed he took it of a book maker named Flash Dick, at Doncaster, on the previous Leger day"—a tall black-eyed man with splendid teeth

I felt puzzled again Certainly betting and the note had had some connection but not according to my theory So home I went, told Mr Dale what I heard, and found him evidently very doubtful of my prospects of doing him any good He seemed thoroughly worried, said he should not speak to his nephew that night, but should take some chloral and go to bed early, and so he did

Now I had had a curious fancy or recollection of something read formerly, that occurred to me when, as I said just now I found him prowling about the house at small hours, and that of a man robbing himself when walking in his sleep This might be so here, or, which was far more likely, Mr Lenton (whom I still suspected) might, having seen his uncle take his sleeping draught, think it a fine chance to do a little wide-awake walking on his own account

Anyhow, I resolved after the house was quiet, to watch I was piqued, I confess

Well, I hid myself in the cupboard which commanded a view of the safe and wretchedly cold it was, besides a most cramped position to stand in I got sleepy and disgusted, when a noise caught my ear, very slight, but enough There was somebody about I was alert—all eyes and ears in a minute Now, at all events, I should discover something. And then a faint light gleamed through the door opening into the bank, and came round the corner towards the glass room, and the figure carrying it was Mr. Dale Yes, I could swear to his blue dressing-gown anywhere, for he would sometimes smoke in it, and—but—why was it pulled over his head?

And here, as the figure stooped before the safe, the dressing-gown was thrown back from the head, and showed a mass of flowing brown hair and a pale, beautiful face the eyes full of terror—the face of Mrs. Dale!

I saw her from her shapely head to the bare white feet that peeped under the blue edge of the dressing-gown. Like a flash it passed through my mind! How clever it was to wear her husband's dressing gown, knowing how he sometimes prowled about Of course she took the nights when he slept tired out, and of course she had his keys at her command But who would have thought it?

She stooped, opened the safe, took out some notes, selected one, relocked the safe, and gave a long, shivering look around Meanwhile, for duty's duty, I blew her light out and snatched the note from her hand She gave a scream that I shall never forget, and fainted. I was sorry as I ran up to her husband's room, but if I hadn't called his own eyes as evidence, he'd never have believed me I roused him, showed him the note, told him the thief was in the back parlor, and begged him to come down. He threw his clothes on, glanced at his wife's empty place, then, with a look of such agony as touched even my tough heart, he ran down stairs

She was lying there, the keys clenched in her hand. He frantically kissed her, dashed water in her face, and revived her. Then the kneeling, shivering, sobbing, miserable woman told all. She had robbed the safe, and no one else knew of it. The notes were sent to her only brother—a thorough scamp—supposed to be dead, recently turned up, but idolized by his sister and a mere gambler—in fact, the very Flash Dick Mr Phillips knew.

I left husband and wife together. The next morning, poor Mr. Dale made the fullest apology to his nephew and Mason, and resigned his appointment. No one knew the secret but myself, and I didn't need his entreaties, when he gave me my handsome fee, to respect it. And he and she sailed for Australia, for his private means were good Whether she was a good wife to him afterwards, I don't know—anyhow, she ought to have been —F G Walters, in Belgravia

Catarrh to Consumption.

Catarrh in its destructive force stands next to and undoubtedly leads on to consumption It is therefore singular that those afflicted with this fearful disease should not make it the object of their lives to rid themselves of it Deceptive remedies concocted by ignorant pretenders to medical knowledge have weakened the confidence of the great majority of sufferers in all advertised remedies They become resigned to a life of misery rather than torture themselves with doubtful palliatives

But this will never do Catarrh must be met at every stage and combated with all our might In many cases the disease has assumed dangerous symptoms The bones and cartilage of the nose the organs of hearing of seeing and of tasting so affected as to be useless, the uvula so elongated the throat so inflamed and irritated as to produce a constant and distressing cough

Sanford s Radical Cure meets every phase of Catarrh from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages It is local and constitutional Instant in relieving permanent in curing, safe, economical and never failing

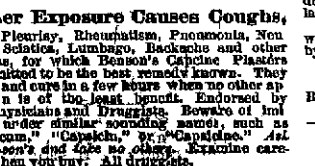

Each package contains one bottle of the Radical Cure one box Catarrhal Solvent and an Improved Inhaler with treatise, price, $1
